 Holmes County, Mississippi
 Repaint And Repair 250,000-gal Elevated Water Storage Tank
 DWI-L260012-01
 August 16, 2021

All projects funded by the Local Governments and Rural Water Systems Improvements Board (Board) under the Drinking Water Systems Improvements Revolving Loan Fund (DWSIRLF) undergo a review to determine whether the proposed project will have a significant impact on the environment. In this determination, it is assumed that all the facilities and actions recommended in the facilities plan will be implemented. The facilities plan for this project is "Repaint and Repair the 250,000-gallon Elevated Water Storage Tank" by Willis Engineering, Inc.

This project consists of sandblasting, painting, and repairing the 250,000-gallon Elevated Water Storage Tank and installing a Master Meter at well no. 2. The estimated project cost and anticipated loan amount is $212,500.00
 The Board has determined that the proposed project meets the criteria for receiving a categorical exclusion from further environmental review. However, this determination can be revoked if significant adverse information becomes available. If you have any comments regarding the proposed project, please send them to David Murtagh, Mississippi State Department of Health/DWSRF, P. O. Box 1700, Jackson, Mississippi 39215-1700, phone (601) 576-7536 no later than September 10, 2021.

Living With Children
 By John Rosemond
 Copyright 2017, John K. Rosemond

It seems to be generally true that as one gets older, the habit of reminiscing develops. Looking back seems to be a function of getting closer to the final curtain. The closer the latter, the more of the former one indulges in. In that regard, I indulge in an optimistic amount.

I often reminisce about my paradoxical childhood. My parents were a mess and so were their marriages, of which, between them, there were four. By any objective measure, I should not have turned out well. My mother and stepfather – he came into my life when I was seven – may have been in love but they didn't seem to like one another at all. That makes for a certain amount of constant tension. In my case, the tension was interspersed with periods of sheer chaos. I spent a lot of time in my room, voluntarily.

During her single parent years, my mom was the parent the proverbial doctor ordered. After her remarriage, she came apart at the seams, but for all her unraveling, she still managed to do some things right, the most significant of which was she let me find my own way. Whether by design or a lack of emotional resources, she left me alone as I wandered rather aimlessly over the landscape of young adult life. A straight-A student in high school, I went to college, promptly joined a rock band (lead singer) and two years later had a GPA of 2.1, which in those days was two-tenths of a point away from Vietnam. Neither Mom nor the ersatz father figure ever said a thing. Today's parents, by and large, would be calling the Dean, calling professors, making trips to campus, making early morning calls to get me out of bed, "helping" with term papers (i.e., serving as ghost writers), sending care packages, hiring tutors, trying to get me diagnosed with something sufficient to obtaining academic dispensations on my behalf...in short, micro-managing and enabling from afar. No such things emanated from Westchester, Illinois. Only a benevolent silence. Rarely did I even come home during breaks, and rarely did they even ask where I was going.

At the end of three years in school, I was still considered a sophomore. It was then that a psychology professor took interest in me and pulled me out of the ditch to which I'd become complacently accustomed.

Serendipity? Fate? God's hand? Who knows? In any case, I married, became a father, got into grad school, finished with honors, and figured out the rest.

The moral of the story: Sometimes, good parenting consists of doing nothing but biting one's nails to the quick in agonizing secrecy.

I talk to a good number of parents who are dealing with young adult children who, more or less, fit the above description. Most of them are trying to fix it. Most of them are attempting to correct bygone parenting blunders that may or may not – probably may not – account for their children's foibles.

They are, to a person, wasting their time and grinding themselves down to the nub in the process. At this point in their children's lives, etiology is not the issue and any speculations along those lines, even coming from a mental health professional, are purely speculative and unverifiable. Said parents simply need to stop trying to fix it.

Which, truth be known, is the most difficult of all parenting hurdles to clear. The good news, for those who manage to clear it: It will most likely be the last.

NOTICE FOR EARLY PUBLIC REVIEW OF A PROPOSAL TO SUPPORT ACTIVITY IN THE 100-YEAR FLOODPLAIN OR WETLAND

To: All Interested Agencies, Groups and Individuals
 This is to give notice that Holmes County, Mississippi, is proposing to expend federal funds in a 100-year floodplain. The subject funds are Home Investment Partnership Program funds administered by the Mississippi Home Corporation.
 This notice is required by Section 2(a)(4) of Executive Order 11988 for Floodplain Management and by Section 2(b) of Executive Order 11990 for the Protection of Wetlands and is implemented by HUD Regulations found at 24 CFR 55.20 for the HUD action that is within or affects a floodplain or wetland.
 Holmes County is proposing to undertake a project known as 2018 Holmes County HOME project for the purpose of rehabilitating eight (8) homes with funding from the HOME Rehabilitation Grant funds. One (1) of those single family homes located at 2226 Thornton Tollarsville Rd., Tchula, MS 39169, is located in the 100 year floodplain.
 The purpose of this notice is to give an early opportunity for interested agencies, persons or groups to comment on the proposed actions. Holmes County, Mississippi, will consider any feasible alternative or adjustments to the anticipated project which might minimize any potential adverse effects upon the floodplain/wetland as a result of the project.
 Additional information concerning this project may be obtained by contacting the Holmes County Administration Office, 408 Court Square, Lexington, MS 39095, during regular business hours Monday through Friday 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M.
 The project has been proposed because Holmes County would like to address the needs of the residents by providing them safe and affordable housing.
 Written comments must be received by the Holmes County Administration Office, 408 Court Square, Lexington, MS 39095, on or before Friday, September 3, 2021, at 5:00 P.M.
