EPA overturns approval of Mississippi Yazoo Pumps Project

A cotton picking tractor sits in a shed at Grosvenor Farms in Holly Bluff, Miss., as backwater floods the surrounding fields on May 23, 2019. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency said Wednesday, Nov. 17, 2021, it has overturned the approval of a massive flood-control project in the south Mississippi Delta that officials said was erroneously greenlit in the final days of the Trump administration. EPA officials said the past administration's November 2020 decision to approve the Yazoo Pumps Project was in violation of the Clean Water Act. (AP Photo/Rogelio V. Solis, File)

By Leah Willingham

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) officials said was erroneous- tive manner." ly greenlit in the final days of the Trump administration.

Civil Works, EPA officials Audubon Society, Sierra said the past administration's Club and Healthy Gulf -November 2020 decision to which had sued the EPA, the approve the Yazoo Pumps U.S. Army Corps of Engi-Project was in violation of the neers and the U.S. Fish and Clean Water Act and "failed Wildlife Service earlier this to reflect the recommenda- year over the construction of tions from the career scien- pumps in the Yazoo Backwatists and technical staff."

pacts from flooding on people and the economy of the The U.S. Environmen- lower Mississippi Delta. But tal Protection Agency said she said she wants to work Wednesday it has overturned with the Corps and others to the approval of a massive find "a path forward that adflood-control project in the dresses flooding concerns in south Mississippi Delta that an environmentally protec-

The decision was cheered In a letter to the Army for American Rivers, National ter area north of Vicksburg.

Radhika Fox, assistant ad- Stu Gillespie, an attorney ministrator for the office of for Earthjustice, the environwater at the EPA, said the mental law firm representing federal government is con- the conservation groups, said cerned about the serious im- the decision is "a powerful affirmation that science and law, not politics, ultimately prevail."

"EPA's decision upholds bedrock environmental laws and restores crucial safeguards for some of the Nation's richest wetlands," Gillespie said Wednesday.

Mississippi's Republican leadership denounced the decision.

U.S. Sen. Cindy Hyde-Smith said in a statement that it was an "absolutely terrible day for the people who live in the Mississippi Delta and an even sadder day for the country when an agency like the EPA refuses to do the right thing for the people."

"This EPA action is an abuse of discretion and couldn't be more arbitrary or capricious," she said. "It also opens the door to a host of legal questions that should, and will likely, be challenged."

U.S. Sen. Roger Wicker said he was "deeply frustrated" by the decision and said it would "leave the people of the South Mississippi Delta in harm's way."

"Today's action means that roads will continue to be impassable, deer and other wildlife and plant life will die, hypoxia will kill fish, small businesses will shut down, and residents will continue to be forced to leave their houses," Wicker said.

of the people who would be ect in 2008. But Andrew groups said that the project impacted by the project are Wheeler, the EPA's admin- has not changed significantly Black, adding, "it amounts to an environmental injustice."

Farmers and environmentalists have been arguing for would reconsider that deci- bic feet-per-second pumpdecades over proposals for sion. An EPA regional ad- ing plant, affecting the same flood-control projects in the ministrator in Atlanta wrote wetlands as the project origisouth Delta.

are dominated by agriculture 2008 veto. and dotted with small com- It was approved by the munities. The area has flood- Corps in January. Wednesed nine of the past 10 years. day's decision was a reversal Among those floods was a of that approval. deluge in 2019 lasted several Supporters of the project months.

He said the vast majority of the proposed pump projistrator appointed by former from what was proposed in President Donald Trump, 2008. They say it still insaid in April that the EPA cludes the same 14,000 cuon Nov. 30 that the current nally proposed.

The flatlands between the version of the pump project Mississippi and Yazoo rivers is not subject to the agency's said the current proposal was The Yazoo Pumps project significantly different than would have involved the the one the EPA previously construction of a 14,000 cu-vetoed, because the pumps bic-feet-per-second pumping would be in a different locaplant in the Yazoo Backwa- tion miles (kilometers) away ter Area to drain water, pri- from the originally planned marily from low-lying agri- site. The current proposal cultural lands, during floods. calls for pumps near Deer The EPA vetoed a version Creek north of Vicksburg.

However, conservation

Court temporarily delays release of Trump's Jan. 6 records

By Norman Merchant WASHINGTON

(AP) - A federal appeals court on Thursday temporarily blocked the release of White House records sought by a U.S. House committee investigating the Jan. 6 insurrection, granting - for now a request from former President Donald Trump.

The administrative injunction issued by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit effectively bars until the end of this month the release of records that were to be turned over Friday. The appeals court set oral arguments in the case for Nov. 30.

The stay gives the court time to consider arguments in a momentous clash between the former president, whose supporters stormed the Capitol on Jan. 6, and President Joe Biden and Congress, who have pushed for a thorough investigation of the riot. It delays the House committee from reviewing records that lawmakers say could shed light on the events leading up to the insurrection and Trump's efforts to delegitimize an election he lost.

The National Archives,

President Donald Trump arrives to speak at a rally in Washington on Jan. 6, 2021. A federal judge is questioning Donald Trump's efforts to withhold documents from Congress related to the Jan. 6 attack on the Capitol. Judge Tanya Chutkan was skeptical Thursday, Nov. 4, of attorneys for the former president who asked her to block the handover of documents to a House committee. (AP Photo/Jacquelyn Martin, File)

Trump on Wednesday.

to the appeals court, Trump's other people as part of its inlawyers wrote that without vestigation. a stay, Trump would "suffer His lawyer, George Terwilirreparable harm through the liger, issued a statement in effective denial of a constitu- response saying Meadows tional and statutory right to "remains under the instrucbe fully heard on a serious tions of former President disagreement between the Trump to respect longstandformer and incumbent Presi- ing principles of executive dent."

The Nov. 30 arguments will take place before three will have to resolve this conjudges nominated by Demo- flict," Terwilliger said. cratic presidents: Patricia The committee late Thurs-Millett and Robert Wilkins, day threatened to begin con-Ketanji Brown Jackson, an change course and comply. appointee of Biden. tude, whichever side loses Meadows's continued resisbefore the circuit court is tance to the Select Commitlikely to eventually appeal to tee's subpoena," the comthe U.S. Supreme Court. Thursday also notified a ows' failure to turn over doclawyer for Mark Meadows, uments or appear at a sched-Trump's former chief of uled deposition on Friday as staff, that Biden would waive "willful non-compliance."

has subpoenaed Meadows In their emergency filing and more than two dozen privilege."

"It now appears the courts

Sign-up Online Anytime • 24/7

www.holmescountyherald.com PayPal is Available! 'avPai which holds the documents, says they include call logs, handwritten notes and a draft executive order on "election integrity."

Biden waived executive privilege on the documents. Trump then went to court arguing that as a former president, he still had the right to exert privilege over the records and releasing them would damage the presidency in the future.

U.S. District Judge Tanya Chutkan on Tuesday rejected those arguments, noting in part, "Presidents are not kings, and Plaintiff is not President." She again denied an emergency motion by nominated by former Presi- tempt proceedings against dent Barack Obama, and Meadows if he doesn't

"Simply put, there is no Given the case's magni- valid legal basis for Mr. mittee wrote to Terwilliger, The White House on saying it would view Mead-any executive privilege that The House has already rewould prevent Meadows ferred former Trump adviser from cooperating with the Steve Bannon to the Justice committee, according to a Department for potential letter obtained by The Asso- criminal prosecution for conciated Press. The committee tempt of Congress.