the following criteria: Leadership (leadership qualities within and/or outside of school), Engagement (engagement within the school body and/or community), Achievement (scholastic achievements so far) and Dedication (dedication to their education and future).

Those recognized as EGSC L.E.A.D. the Way Society Ambassadors were Aaron Clegg, Aubren Floyd, Tevin Gartrell, Gavin Heitmann, Mickenzie Norman, Jordan Shelton, Janet Spurlock, Gregory Willingham, and Jacob Wortz.

STAR student and teacher of 2021 are Jordyn Deason and Kevin Steed.

This year, 10 seniors, considered both "bright and talented," were named as scholar athletes. Scholar athletes must have participated in one or more sports for at least three years of high school, while maintaining a cumulative A average. Those students are Gianna Anderson, Chloe Cliatt, Anna Cox, Jordyn Deason, Rachel Jordan, Jenna Kinzie, Sydney Radford, Reginald Reid, Crystal Treadwell, and Madi Welch.

Seniors who have completed the Career, Technical, Agricultural Education pathway which includes three classes in a concentrated area; have taken or will take the End of the Pathway assessment; as well as having the highest overall average giving them a credential worthy of recognition are: Bryson Segars for agriculture; Michel Bowen for sheet metal and welding; Jordan Norman for food service; and Gianna Anderson for health science.

Pinning Ceremonies date back to the late 1800s as a way of recognizing those individuals who are dedicating themselves to a life of health, healing, and compassion for those in need.

Students completing the Patient Care Fundamentals pathway spend 136 hours preparing to take their Certified Nursing Assistant examination; spend 106 hours in class and lab time practicing their 300 plus skills in order to be prepared for clinicals; and spend 30 hours completing clinicals at Lake Crossing.

During this year's Pinning Ceremony students from the Class of 2020 who missed out on being pinned last year due to the pandemic were included. They were Haleigh Collins, Alexandria Gilpin, Sasha Sullivan, and Kirsten Wigginton.

Unfortunately, this year students were unable to have the off-campus experience, but thanks to the efforts of instructor Tangie McKinney they were able to test last week. Students from the Class of 2021 recognized were Gianna Anderson, Danielle Gibbs, Aubrey Gruber, Trontaisha Hawes, Ethan Leclerc, Shamaya Lockhart, Gracie Phillips, Kaitlyn Riley, Leslie Turnbull, and Avery Wendling.

Seniors receiving scholarships included:

Madi Welch the Charles Wurst Jr. Memorial Scholarship; Gianna Anderson and Jordan Norman the Lincoln-Wilkes Retired Educators Scholarship; Jordan Norman and Gianna Anderson the W. E. Mason Pioneer Scholarship; Rachel Jordan the Daughters of the American Revolution Scholarship; Trontaisha Hawes the Twilight Improvement Association Scholarship; Kristen Wigginton and Beatrice Jackson the Watson Brown Scholarship; Jordan Norman the #44 Strong Scholarship; Anna Cox the Walter Harrison Rayle EMC Scholarship; Jordyn Deason the Palmetto Fellows, Lander University Trustee's Award, and Helen Rogers Baker Scholarship; and Reggie Reid the Fellowship of the Christian Athletes Coaches Award/Scholarship.

Rayle EMC awarded monetary scholarships to Rachel Jordan and Aaron Clegg in lieu of the annual Rayle EMC Washington Youth Tour. Due to COVID-19 restrictions these two students were unable to make the trip.

Aaron Clegg, Tevin Gartrell, and Julianne Mattison were the recipients of the Lead Edge Design Group - Cole Baby Mattison Aviation Scholarship.

The scholarship is established to honor Cole Mattison's passion for aviation, and to assist the students at LCHS toward becoming pilots and opening potential career pathways in aviation.

Those career pathways include diverse opportunities such as corporate and engineering, airport construction, and the aerospace field.
