Archimages names executive director

Stephanie Jeffries has joined Archimages Inc. as executive director. The architecture and interior design firm has multiple locations throughout the Midwest.

Jeffries has more than 20 years as a facility management executive as well as an executive with a major general contractor. Her understanding of project development and delivery methods enables Archimages to address critical client issues not normally included within standard architectural services, the firm said.

Jeffries was formerly a project executive for Paric Corp., divisional director of facilities for Hospital Sisters Health System, and facility and environment manager and design and construction manager for Alton Memorial Hospital-BJC Healthcare. She is a board member of the Southern Illinois Chapter for Healthcare Engineering and is on the Advisory Board for the SIUE Construction Management Degree Program and the Advisory Board for the SIUE Construction Leadership Institute.

She holds a B.S. in Construction Engineering from Southern Illinois University Edwardsville and an MBA from Lindenwood University.

Gori firm recognizes attorney's awards

The Gori Law Firm says Bob Marcus has been recognized as an Illinois Leading Lawyer in 2021. Selection for Leading Lawyers is based on the results from Law Bulletin Media's annual surveys that are mailed to practicing lawyers in the state.

He is one of several attorneys at The Gori Law Firm to receive this honor.

Individuals selected as Leading Lawyers are recommended by their peers to be among the top lawyers in their specific areas of practice. Once completed, results from the annual surveys are then reviewed and approved by an advisory board. Less than 5 percent of all lawyers licensed in each state receive this impressive distinction.

He is licensed to practice law in Illinois, Missouri and Tennessee. Marcus has also been recognized by Super Lawyers.

Rose appointed to post at archival library

Mary Z. Rose, of Alton, was recently appointed as the new Archival Library research manager at the Madison County

Rose

Archival Library in Edwardsville. Rose began working at the Madison County Historical Museum five years ago as a volunteer, then four years ago accepted a part-time position as assistant curator at the museum. Rose earned her Master's degree in Library and Information Science from the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign in 2001. Prior to coming to the Madison County Historical Museum and Archival Library, she held three other library positions. After college, she found a job as the assistant director of the Tri-Township Public Library District in Troy, where her multiple duties included reference service, collection development, and cataloging. Following that job, she worked at the Bryan Cave law firm in downtown St. Louis as a cataloging librarian. In 2007, she was hired as metadata librarian at Lovejoy Library at Southern Illinois University Edwardsville. At SIUE she created online collections and exhibits featuring the library's archival and special collections materials.

In her new role, she is responsible for providing access to the Madison County Historical Society's archival collections through research services, finding aids, outreach, exhibitions, and digitization. She also coordinates the "behind-the-scenes" work necessary for the library to function, like accessioning donations, arranging and describing collections, and preserving documents.

The Madison County Historical Museum and Archival Library are operated through a joint agreement between Madison County government and the Madison County Historical Society. Rose's new position is as a county employee.

Centerstone names director of MAT services

Centerstone, a national provider in behavioral health and addiction services, recently named Dr. Wayne O. Wells as medication-assisted treatment medical director for Centerstone's Illinois region.

Wells will oversee MAT services, which provide a collaborative approach to include medication, counseling and psychiatric services to help individuals establish and maintain recovery. His day-to-day will involve completing admissions of adult clients with opiate disorders into MAT services, monitoring clients' doses, ensuring compliance with federal regulation and responding to any emergent situations that may arise.

Prior to joining Centerstone, Wells had a wealth of both clinical and executive experience in the medical field. He has worked as a physician for more than 35 years and has executive experience as the Chief of Staff, Vanderbilt Wilson County Hospital in Lebanon, Tenn.; Board of Directors, Synergy Healthcare, in Nashville, Tenn., and assistant director of family medicine for State University of New York Health Science Center at Brooklyn in New York.

Wells holds an M.D. from Universidad Autonoma de Guerrero in Curnavaca, Mexico. He has served as president and medical director for several organizations, including the Mid-State Independent Physician Association, Wilson County Medical Society, Trevecca Nazarene University Physician Assistant Program and Health Resource Integration Clinics. He has also served as principal investigator for a published research study.
