Director transition announced at FGMA

FGM Architects announced that Kevin Meyer is the new managing director of the St. Louis Region office, succeeding

Meyer

Tim Kwiatkowski, who is now FGMA president. In a joint statement announcing Meyers' appointment, FGMA CEO John Dzarnowski and Kwiatkowski said, "As the FGM Architects' practice continues to grow in municipal, public safety and educational markets, the strong leadership that Kevin brings to our anchor office in the St. Louis/Southern Illinois region is essential to maintain our staff strength and delivery of design excellence to every client, every day."

Meyer, AIA, joined FGMA in 1998 and is a vice president and principal of the firm. He works across FGMA's practice areas.

He received his B.S. in Architectural Studies from Southern Illinois University Carbondale.

Headquartered in Oak Brook, Ill., FGMA is an employee-owned firm with offices in Chicago and O'Fallon, Ill.; St. Louis; Austin, Texas; and Milwaukee.

FGM Architects adds project manager

Lori Everett, AIA, LEED AP, has joined the St. Louis office of FGM Architects as a project manager concentrated mainly in FGMA's PK-12 school design and municipal practice areas.

She is said to have a strong background in school safety and PK-12 design, facility master planning and programming as well as creating enhanced learning environments in public libraries.

Her work includes revitalizing eight library branches of the St. Louis County Library District through renovations and new construction with enhanced, technology-rich learning environments.

Everett earned her B.S. in Architecture from Southern Illinois University Carbondale and her Master of Architecture from Arizona State University.

Emergency director receives top honor

Madison County's Emergency Management Agency Director Anthony Falconio received the International Association of Emergency Managers highest honor of professional achievement — certified emergency manager.

The association represents professionals whose goals are saving lives and protecting property and the environment during emergencies and disasters.

Falconio qualified by submitting an extensive credentials package giving personal and professional background achievements and successfully completing a management essay and a written examination. In order to maintain certification, a person must continue a program of professional development over successive five-year periods.

Falconio was appointed the county's EMA director on Feb. 19, 2020, after serving eight months as interim director.

Prior to Madison County, Falconio served as the director of Emergency Management in Clinton County from 2009 to 2014. Falconio holds an Illinois Professional Emergency Manager Designation as well as Master of Science degree from Southern Arkansas University.

HSHS names top exec to start this June

HSHS, which operates several hospitals and physician practices in Southern Illinois, announced that Damond W. Boatwright has accepted an offer to serve as president and CEO of Hospital Sisters Health System.

Boatwright

He will start in this role in June 2021, succeeding the current president and CEO of HSHS, Mary Starmann-Harrison, who retires in July after serving in this role for the past decade.

Boatwright will be relocating to the Springfield area from Madison, Wis. He currently serves as regional president for SSM Health Wisconsin, a role since 2014.

Prior to SSM Health Wisconsin, Boatwright served in various leadership roles at Hospital Corporation of America from 2001 to 2013. Boatwright is originally from Charleston, S.C. Though he once aspired to become a physician, he earned his Bachelor of Science in Business Administration at The Citadel in Charleston in 1994. It was a chance meeting with a Citadel alum who worked in health-care administration that led Boatwright to pursue a career in health care.

Boatwright worked full-time at HCA while completing his Master of Health Administration and Health Sciences at Medical University of South Carolina. After finishing graduate school, Boatwright worked as an administrative fellow for Duke University Health System in Raleigh, North Carolina.

Hospital Sisters Health System operates physician practices and 15 local hospitals in two states — Illinois (Breese, Decatur, Effingham, Greenville, Highland, Litchfield, O'Fallon, Shelbyville and Springfield) and Wisconsin (Chippewa Falls, Eau Claire, Oconto Falls, Sheboygan and two in Green Bay). HSHS is sponsored by Hospital Sisters Ministries, and Hospital Sisters of St. Francis is the founding institute.

Superintendent named for Edwardsville schools

Dr. Paul Shelton is returning to Southern Illinois after being named as the next superintendent of schools in Edwardsville.

Shelton

He is current assistant superintendent of elementary education in the Lee's Summit R-VII School District in Lee's Summit, Mo. Prior to joining Lee's Summit, a district of 18,000 students in the Kansas City-metro area, Shelton served as the coordinator of customized learning in the Parkway (Mo.) School District.

He has also served as a building principal in Parkway, as well as Wood River-Hartford School District 15. He started his career as a K-12 Music Teacher in Staunton CUSD 6 prior to becoming an administrator.

Shelton will take over for Superintendent Jason Henderson, who is stepping down at year's end. Henderson resigned last November after being hired in early 2019.

Shelton will begin a three-year contract with the district on July 1.

He was one of three under consideration. The others were Dave Deets, superintendent at Harmony-Emge School District 175 near Belleville, and Brent O'Daniell, superintendent of Genoa-Kingston Community Unit School District 424 in suburban Chicago.

Shelton earned his bachelor's degree in music education from Culver-Stockton College and his master's in education, his specialist's degree in educational leadership and his doctorate degree in educational leadership, all from SIUE.
