Cocomo Confections brings old-fashion goodness and values to South Central Kentucky

If you're looking for to satisfy that sweet-tooth craving, look no farther than Cocomo Confections, located in Bowling Green, Ky.

Cocomo Confections was created by Maggie Copeland, an artist, musician, teacher and mother of six. She and her husband, Jerry, raised their family in the foothills of Northern California. She was often known as the "Martha Stewart" of the foothills because of her creative skills in cooking and baking.

With Jerry's background in business, they have created a charming nostalgic sweet shop with a motto of "old-fashioned goodness and value".

The Copelands create attractive gourmet chocolates at affordable prices. Offering an assorted and custom sorted boxed chocolates and they also have molded specialty chocolates and novelty confections. Their bakery creates an array of vintage cakes, pies, cookies and handmade bagels. Delicious ice cream sundaes, milkshakes and cones provide refreshing treats as well. In the summertime they serve Hawaiian shaved ice. Early morning options include gourmet espresso and hot chocolate with breakfast pastries.

Cocomo Confections is located at 1945 Scottsville Road, Suite A2 (next to Rafferty's) and is open Mon. – Thurs. 7:30 a.m. – 6 p.m.; Fri. 7:30 a.m. – 7 p.m.; Sat. 10 a.m. – 7 p.m..
