RELISHING THANKSGIVING

Dawn Reed

My Northern family always ate at 2 p.m. sharp. My mother cooked the turkey through the night. We were people of bread dressing. The only cranberry sauce I knew growing up came out of a can and was sliced on the lines.

In Alabama, on Thanksgiving, we ate at 6 p.m. My mother-in-law taught me to savor the day with a finale of turkey and dressing in the evening. Her cranberry sauce was a yummy mix of berries, celery, and nuts. Somehow in her tiny oven, she was able to squeeze in the ham, a turkey, plus cornbread dressing baked in a cast iron skillet.

Carol Bradley was Thanksgiving personified. The smell of celery and onions cooking immediately takes me to her place, standing in the middle of her tiny kitchen.

This morning while pondering the Thanksgiving holiday, I came across this tasty morsel in Psalms: “Let them give thanks to the LORD for His unfailing love and His wonderful deeds for men, for He satisfies the thirsty and fills the hungry with good things,” (107:8-9). Sounds like Thanksgiving dinner!

Whether you’re from the North or South, make and enjoy all the memories you can this Thanksgiving. May your thirst be filled with sweet or unsweetened tea and hunger be filled with cornbread dressing and cranberry sauce!
