Trust

"Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways submit to him, and he will make your paths straight."
Proverbs 3:5-6 NIV

Many aspects of our lives rely on trust. Financial transactions in all their variety, from using credit cards to using currency, and even the act of putting money in the bank depend to a large extent on trusting the institutions and people we are dealing with. In the social and political realm trust is likewise crucial to maintaining the institutions of society and government and ensuring they function effectively. The current lack of trust between the major political parties and between people and their elected representatives is one of the factors responsible for government not working as well as it should. On a spiritual level, trusting in God that things are working out as they should, that virtue will be rewarded, and vice punished is one of the things that allows us to feel at home in the world. Trust sometimes requires a leap of faith. Accepting a personal check from someone requires us to trust them and believing that God loves and cares about us likewise requires us to trust in God. We do well to remember that if we want others to trust us, we must be true to our word, do what we say we will do, and be good stewards of the trust that others place in us by not betraying their confidence.
