Under new management.

Mandy Hinson of Union City and Dana Pruitt of Troy make up the new executive board for Obion County Fall Fest. Both have been actively involved in the local festival, which has been known as either Fall Fest or CornFest, since 1992.

Mrs. Hinson has volunteered for the annual festival for 14 years and now is serving as president. Over the years, she has chaired numerous events. This year, she will continue as chairman of An Evening in the Vines, which will be held at White Squirrel Winery near Kenton, and in her role as public relations this year.

She is director of development for West TN PBS and owns Bloom by wind Church and volunteers as a high school girls small group leader. She is a member of the Obion County Chamber of Commerce, president of the American Advertising Federation of West Tennessee and a Masquerade Theatre board member.

Mrs. Pruitt has been a Fall Fest volunteer for six years and is the executive director. Her responsibilities this year include An Evening in the Vines and Fall Fest Family Day, which will be held in the backyard at the Obion County Public Library.

She is employed at Nutrien Ag Solutions and owns PIECE Jewelry. She is married to Nathan Pruitt. She is mother to Cary Lynn Pruitt and stepmother of Eva and Carter Pruitt. She volunteers for the non-profit Special Ops Xcursions and is a member of Crosswind Church.
