

An Evening in the Vines

It will be an evening to dress “to the nines” and enjoy the company of friends and neighbors from across Obion County and the northwest Tennessee region as Obion County Fall Fest hosts “An Evening in the Vines” at White Squirrel Winery near Kenton Oct. 7 from 6-9:30 p.m.

It also offers local residents the opportunity to support Soul Food Café, which will benefit from a silent auction. Tickets, with the printing graciously donated by PIP Printing, may be purchased at the Obion County Public Library for $35 per person or $60 per couple. Tickets are limited.

Soul Food Café provides free meals for families from across Obion County and the surrounding area at The Refuge Church location at the Obion County Fairgrounds.

Johnny Mac of Big Sandy — singer of country, rock, blues, soul and gospel — will provide the entertainment. Johnny Mac is a guitar slinger, tune singer, songwriter student of southern music.

Heavy hors d'oeuvres will be provided. Wine and beer will be available for purchase.

Cocktail attire is requested.

Business After Hours

COUNTDOWN TO 100 — The Obion County Chamber of Commerce, which is dedicated to providing education and support to strengthen and enhance economic success for its members, area businesses and the region, is turning 100 in 2023. As part of Obion County Fall Fest, Chamber officials will be counting down to their 100th celebration and partying like they are 99 during a Business After Hours event scheduled for Oct. 6 from 4-7 p.m. under the Farmers Market Pavilion at 214 East Church St. in Union City. Helping plan the event are Obion County Joint Economic Development Corporation chief executive officer Lindsay Frilling (left) and community relations director Brooke Coffey Simmons.
