June is National Pollinator Month

University of Illinois Master Naturalists want to celebrate pollinator month with you. The local Master Naturalists group, Prairie's Edge, has scheduled several, fun and informative presentations and guided walks throughout June.

"The goal is for participants to learn more about our well-known pollinators, some of the forgotten pollinators, the threats they face, and to identify ways to help them," says Master Naturalist program co-ordinator Jenny Lee.

The kickoff event is Satur-day, June 4, 10:30 am-noon at Carnegie Public Library, Charleston. You will learn the basics of pollination and polli-nators, pick up tips on observ-ing pollinators in the wild, take a guided stroll through the li-brary Butterfly Hotspots, and get a sneak peek at activities planned for the month.

Other presentations will be held at Douglas-Hart Nature Center from 5:30-6:30 pm. "Native Bees" will be presented on Thursday, June 9. Learn their habits and habitats, the threats they face, and their im-portance compared to that of honeybees. Learn what helps or hurts native bees, including backyard gardening and the pros and cons of bee houses and bee baths.

On Thursday, June 23 during

"Forgotten Pollinators" you will learn about moths, wasps, bee-tles, flies, hummingbirds, bats, and other small mammals that are excellent pollinators. Learn how to identify these species and how you can help make a positive impact.

"Gardening for Pollinators" will be presented on Thursday, June 30. Learn about pollinators commonly found throughout Illi-nois, how to identify them, the native plants that attract them, and how you can create a polli-nator oasis in your yard using these native plants, no matter your space limitations!

Guided walks will also be of-fered at various locations throughout the month. During these walks, you will learn about some unique plant-polli-nator relationships and several community-science pollinator projects. Walks are scheduled for Friday, June 10; Thursday, June 16; Monday, June 20; and Tuesday, June 28. For locations and times, and to register go to go.illinois.edu/pollinate or call 217-345-7034. Learn more at the Facebook page Prairie's Edge Master Naturalists.

If you will need an accom-modation in order to partici-pate, please email uie-ccdms@illinois.edu. Early requests are strongly encour-aged to allow sufficient time to meet your access needs.
