

Hardin County High School

A great place to learn

Hardin County High School is a member of the Association of Colleges and Schools, and a multiple winner of the A.F. Bridges District Award for good sportsmanship.

Wes Wilkerson is head principal of HCHS; Ben Gean and Jeremy Davis are assistant principals. Darrell Stricklin is Career and Technical Education director. HCHS has four guidance counselors, one for each grade level who remain with the class freshman through senior years. HCHS is also partnered with The Ayers Foundation which is dedicated to improving the quality of life for the people of Tennessee by positively affecting the fields of education, conservation and social welfare. Currently, the school enrollment number is roughly 1,040 students.

Hardin County High School offers its students a vast array of educational opportunities from a variety of subjects, to sports and extracurricular activities. Classes offered range from remedial classes to college level classes, as well as working with Jackson State Community College to offer dual credit courses.

Other opportunities include a wide selection of vocational classes, clubs, sports teams, and an award-winning marching band.
