TECHNOLOGY

I had a situation last week that could not have been accomplished 15-20 years ago. There was a customer that was interested in my clients’ 1971 Triumph TR6.

The interested person lived a bit far away in Marathon. We tried to coordinate a meeting here in Delray Beach where the car is but on two different weekends they were not able to come up due to different situations.

They were very interested after I sent them some pictures, but wanted more. I came up with an idea. I had the couples’ phone numbers and suggested I do a video call with them and they agreed. We picked a specific date and time.

I called the husband and the video call did not go thru to him. He called and said he was working at a power station in the Keys and he thought there was interference preventing the call from coming thru.

I called the wife and that was a no-go either. She called and said she was a schoolteacher and the wi-fi at school was controlled so she could not do a video call.

What to do, what to do? I took a video of the car as I walked around it and sent it to her phone as a message attachment so she could show it to her hubby at home, problem solved. I am waiting to hear from them soon.

Sometimes technology can be your friend. As always take care and check that air.
