CEO Class helps students start businesses

By Dominik Stallings
Students from Douglas and Coles County are learning things about business in one of the most direct ways possible, by starting a small business.

Business plans, market surveys, mission statements, logos and even legal structures are all terms students learn in the Illini Prairie CEO Class. They learn these not just by sitting in a classroom lecture but also by going out and visiting with businesses in the local area.

Hannah Myers, one of the facilitators for the class, said, “We spend four weeks in each community. We are touring businesses and learning about them in the local economies. There is a lot of creativity and genius in our communities of high schools. What better way to get them to learn about this.”

The goal of the class is to start a small business. Students choose what they want to do, create their business plans and learn about all the things that go on behind the scenes of businesses. Students have the freedom to do what they want, even if it means starting over from scratch on a different project. Myers said one student is even working on a non-profit business.

Mikayla Dunn, a Tuscola student, is creating custom-made keychains for her small business named “Charisma.”

She works with clients and comes up with the designs for the keychains, then shows clients the proof and gets to work. The idea came to her after realizing how often she lost her keys.

“I thought it would be easier to find my keys if they stood out a bit more,” said Dunn.

Before the keychains, Dunn wanted to start a whipped body butter and sugar scrubs

CABOT TUSCOLA made a donation of diapers and wipes to the Douglas County Health Department (DCHD) for the WIC (Women, Infants, Children) and (FCM) Family Case Management programs. The DCHD programs serve over 300 low income families in Douglas County that need assistance with diapers and wipes as well as clothing for all ages of children, car seats (all sizes new born to boosters), and feminine hygiene products.

“We at Cabot are thankful for programs provided by the Douglas County Health Department,” the company said. “DCHD has an on-going need for items. Please consider helping DCHD with donations. At Cabot, we are committed to delivering contributions that make a positive difference in the local community. The donation helps with advancing Cabot’s sustainability pillars of Caring for Our People and Communities – Well-Being.”

DCHD pushes vaccinations ahead of May 11 declaration expiration

By Colleen Lehmann
DCHD public health liaison

With the COVID-19 emergency declaration officially expiring on May 11, many things we have taken for granted will come to an end at some point thereafter, including free COVID testing, vaccines, and treatment. In preparation for
