sponse in sense of donations. I feel very overwhelmed, in a good way,” said Boutin.

The idea to organize the prom project came to Boutin when she was driving home from church with her husband. She realized that prom was getting closer and how special an event it is for many students.

“I don’t want anyone to feel like they can’t show. Everyone is welcome to come, regardless of their situation,” said Boutin.

Madison Parkinson is helping her with organizing and the Villa Grove Devilette dancers will help students try on dresses during the event.

“Im just really excited to see the turnout and see the vision come to life and have the community come together,” said Boutin.
