most of the stuff."

Evans said he wants to repair and sell refurbished vacuums to people at more affordable prices than newly purchased cleaners.

"It's wasteful. We live in a throwaway society, so it's good to repair them and save people some money, so they don't have to spend hundreds of dollars on a new one," said Evans.

A lot of vacuum cleaners that are thought to be broken or not performing as well are simply in need of maintenance, according to Evans. A trip to the repair shop can return a vacuum back to working order, collecting dust and debris just as well when it was first purchased.

Before starting his business, Evans worked as a mail carrier for five years. He also worked at Cabot Corporation for some time before starting this new venture.

He's wanted to start this business before, but two vacuum repair stores cornered the niche market. In the Mattoon location, Abells Fix it Shop's owner retired after 40 years just leaving Byer's Vacuum in Champaign.

Evans made his move afterward. He even sold his house to make his dream come true.

While the store is not officially open yet, Evans is already planning for the future. He said he wants to eventually open an online store and expand his business as much as he can until then.

lentless Gym.

Other businesses have found their roots in the Jarman Plaza. Foote and Friends, which provides animal behavioral training for veterinarians, can be found in the former pediatrician's office. 2 Herons Wellness also provides wellness services.

Robinson said there is also an accounting firm and insurance provider on the first floor. According to Robinson, a barbershop is expected to open on the first floor soon.

Robinson said that he plans to expand the gym in the future as the recent opening of Relentless Gym has been successful so far. He said he plans to have an area for boxing classes and martial arts as well as more room for training equipment in the current space.

Through the Silver Sneakers program, local seniors can sign up and work out for free at Relentless Gym. Eligibility is based on select Medicare plans and age.
