

Now what?

Many grads will join the workforce or attend college

Joining the workforce, going to college, entering the military, traveling, staying close to home and starting a family are among the plans seniors have made for after graduation.

Kennedy Bowlin will be "going to Tiffin University for both my bachelor's and master's degrees in forensic psychology. I want to become a jury consultant using this degree."

"The United States Naval Academy," said Eli Chevalier. He plans to major in mechanical engineering.

"Go into the trades," said Brady Coffman.

"My plans are to graduate from Bowling Green State University with a bachelor's degree in early childhood education," said Ana-Jean Determan. "In the future I plan to get my master's degree and get my bachelor's degree in art education. I would like to teach in a community school in the area I grew up in."

"Get a job and start a family," said Kristin Dyer.

"I want to go into the HVAC workforce," said Collin Eader.

Kalyn England hopes "to become a teacher."

Braxton Frisch plans to "weld at National Machinery and take over my family farm."

"I plan on going right into the workforce. I would like to get into the public safety field as a dispatcher," said Aurora Harper.

"HVAC and construction" are David Hoffert's job plans.

Cameron Hufford's plans are to "work hard, make money."

"I will get my welding certificate through Terra State and then weld and travel for a couple years," said Troy Johnson.

Zoey Kessler said, "My future plan is to attend Marion Technical College. I am going to be a registered nurse."

Brant Kirian said he will "be a welder, then a state trooper."

Biz Klopp plans to "attend The University of Findlay and major in business management. I will continue my volleyball career there as well."

"I want to join the Commercial Electricity Union down in Columbus. I will definitely stay around Sycamore," Cole Leeth answered.

"I plan to go to Bowling Green State University and major in early childhood education," Elise Meyer answered.

"I plan on joining the workforce after high school," said Carter Perry.

Liam Pursell said, "I plan to go to college and then hopefully travel."

"I plan to go full time at Arnold Machine as a welder and get married," Hezekiah Ramirez said.

Kasidi Reis-Kelly is planning to graduate from cosmetology school at Sentinel Career and Technology Center with her cosmetology license and then hopes to start working in the hair industry.

Elizabeth Rhoads' plan is "to graduate and find a job nearby so I can stay close to home."

Kaden Roush wants to "go straight into the workforce at Tiffin Scenic Studios welding aluminum."

"I plan on going into the workforce and also working on the family farm," Mason Schimpf said.

John Stansbery intends to "get a welding job."

"Become farrier" is Gage Swartz's plan.

"I hope to go to college but I'm not sure what I want to study," said Brendan Tackett.

Landon Yeager's plan is to "work full time at Palfinger and work on my trucks and help on the farm."

"I plant o get my real estate license as soon as I can after I turn 18 in August. Until then I plan to work at a salon as an esthetician. After I become comfortable with real estate, I plan to hopefully have my own salon one day," said Faith Zender.
