LWC Theatre to present 'A Grand Night for Singing'

DUANE BONIFER
LINDSEY WILSON UNIV.

For lovers of musical theatre, Lindsey Wilson University's V.P. Henry Auditorium will be the place to be at the end of March.

The Lindsey Wilson Department of Theatre will present A Grand Night for Singing at 7 p.m. CT March 26-27 and at 2 p.m. CT March 29 in V.P. Henry Auditorium.

The musical review will span seven decades of the musical stage -- from Cole Porter's Anything Goes of 1934 to Stephen Schwartz's

Wicked of 2003.

"This will cut across generations and appeal to everyone who enjoys musicals," said theatre graduate assistant Cassidy Phelps '24, who will direct the production.

With the exception of the late-20th century jukebox musical Mamma Mia!, all of the selections will be from original productions, many by giants of the musical theatre.

"I didn't want anything super modern," said Phelps. "That's because I wanted to shed light on the golden age of musicals that got us
