

7 Brew dropped in Campbellsville

Photo submitted

7 Brew, a drive-thru beverage brand offering over 20,000 drink combinations, dropped a future stand in Campbellsville last week at 200 Lebanon Ave. The stand will add 50 jobs to the Campbellsville area and aims to open this summer. Pictured, from left to right: Allen Crabtree (planning and zoning), Josh Pedigo (Campbellsville city administrator), Campbellsville Mayor Dennis Benningfield, Sean Johnson (7 Brew regional manager).

"The General Assembly's commitment to Kentucky's public schools is clear and well documented. We have increased K-12 education funding to record levels and will continue to invest billions of dollars to educate our future leaders. Total Kentucky K-12 education funding, including our investments in public educator pensions, outpaces even inflation. "The record makes clear that HB 1 is not about taking resources away from public education. On the contrary: It's about doing what we must to ensure federal tax credits claimed by Kentucky families support Kentucky students rather than leaving our commonwealth altogether. "Governor Beshear's meandering veto message reminds me of a student who really wishes the teacher had put a different question on the test. Well, we will "grade" his work next week when we override his veto and start the process of making these federal funds available to Kentucky families."

Screen

Screening tests can find polyps so they can be removed before turning into cancer. Screening also helps find colorectal cancer at an early stage, when treatment often leads to a cure. Regular screening, beginning at age 45, is the key to preventing colorectal cancer and finding it early.

The U.S. Preventive Services Task Force recommends that adults aged 45 to 75 be screened for colorectal cancer. The Task Force recommends that adults aged 76 to 85 talk to their doctor about screening. Screening options include stool-based tests, flexible sigmoidoscopy, and colonoscopy. While early colorectal cancer may not cause symptoms, there are warning signs to look for. Changes in bowel habits, blood in or on the stool, persistent abdominal discomfort, unexplained weight loss, and weakness or fatigue. During Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month, health officials encourage community members to talk with their healthcare providers, learn their family health history, and stay up to date with recommended screenings. By raising awareness and taking action, we can reduce the impact of colorectal cancer and save lives. ## HAND OVER YOUR KEYS.

Hold On To What Matters

Drinking and driving can take away everything that matters most to you... your freedom, your job, your reputation, your future and even your life. Make a commitment to yourself and others to drive sober this season.
