Box 130, Greensburg, KY 42743.

Letter to the Editor

Transparency: Let's do this together

Dear Editor:

Our society has a word that gets used a lot lately, it's transparency. I hope you will indulge me and let me tell you the honest truth about my husband. He is a man of integrity that I totally believe in and the one man that I know you can believe in too.

After 7 years living life as a widow, I was joyfully surprised when God blessed me in the most incredible way. I met and married a wonderful man that many of you know, Steven T Caven.

Steve is strong, kind and compassionate. He has a huge servants heart and after 38 1/2 years in education, he feels led to continue as a servant by serving in the office of KY State Representative of the 24th district for Green, Hart and LaRue Counties. For those of you who don't know him, I want tell you about the wonderful man I know and love, Steve Caven.

First of all, he is not just a man of faith in God, but he is a man of deep moral convictions. Steve purposely and unwaveringly lives out his life daily by those convictions. He is honest, kind, intelligent, wise, and resourceful. He is physically strong and his favorite pastime is pedaling for miles on his bicycle at every available opportunity. He loves learning and is methodical in searching for knowledge, statistics, and resources for the best possible solutions to make every situation better for those in need. He is not just a fighter, but a seasoned warrior when it comes to any task he undertakes.

If you want a full time State Representative, devoted to being your conservative Republican voice for improving agriculture, education, health, infrastructures and industry for ALL the people of Green, Hart, and LaRue counties, then Steve Caven is your man!

If you want a representative who has the desire, the dream, the passion, and the ability to do the work to build a better future for your children and your grand children then I pray you go to the poll and vote for Steven T Caven! He is truly the most outstanding man in this field to be State Representative of the 24th District!

Thank you for your time, encouragement and your vote on May 19th.

Let's do this Together!

Respectfully submitted by
Joyce Caven

More good days, one choice at a time

Dr. Angelia Bryant
Licensed Clinical Counselor

If there is one thing the world is teaching us in 2026, it is this: we are all tired of rushing and deeply hungry for peace.

Everywhere we turn, the conversation is the same. People are carrying anxiety about the future, finances, and uncertainty, and they are searching not for perfection, but for something steadier and something sustainable. This year's national mental health theme says it beautifully:

"More Good Days, Together". Not perfect days. Not extraordinary days. Just more good days.

And maybe that's the shift we've been needing all along. As a counselor and as someone who has lived enough life to know better; I see a quiet but powerful movement happening. We are learning that healing doesn't come from dramatic shifts. It comes from small, intentional choices repeated over time. Research even reflects this trend: sustainable well-being is now rooted in continuous care, small steps, and daily practices, not quick fixes. In other words, transformation doesn't shout anymore;

it whispers.

The world is also re-discovering something ancient: we don't have to become someone new to feel whole. We simply have to return to what matters. Around the globe, people are embracing ideas like accepting imperfection, finding purpose, and taking small daily steps toward growth. Peace is not found in comparison, but in contentment.

Let me say that again for the heart that needs it today: You do not have to be more impressive.

You do not have to be more productive. You simply have to be more present.
