Frank believes that the project will take around a year to complete and hopes to have the facility completely operational by late 2028.

In spite of rumors around the county, a specific site has not been announced but is expected to be declared before long.

Frank said that there will be several people involved in the planning process, but those individuals have not been named yet.

Through its weekly 4-H column and regular features, the newspaper helps increase community awareness and support for Extension programming while celebrating the achievements of Green County youth.

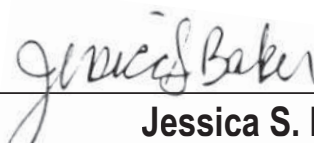

Loyall described the newspaper as "an essential partner in promoting leadership, learning, and service among Green County youth."

Congratulations were extended to both Sue Ann Loyall and the Green County Record-Herald for their continued partnership and dedication to supporting youth development and strengthening the local 4-H program.
