

Students waited patiently for the graduation ceremony to begin Friday evening in the high school gym.

Hugs all around! After being declared graduates of Green County High School, the students celebrated with their classmates.

Graduates anticipated tossing their caps in the air as they celebrated graduation.

Many students had fun with a camera activity in which they wrote on the camera's plastic cover while the camera was videoing.

Following tradition, the Green County High School band played "Pomp Circumstance" for the graduation ceremony on Friday night.

A fist bump between friends was a great way to get the graduation program started.

Lindsey Wilson Nursing

Before the start of the fall semester, the university received a grant from the Kentucky Council on Post-secondary Education Healthcare Workforce Investment Fund to establish a healthcare training scholarship partnership between Lindsey Wilson and Taylor Regional Hospital in Campbellsville. This is the second grant Lindsey Wilson's nursing program has received from the Education Healthcare Workforce Investment Fund. The previous one established a healthcare training scholarship partnership with T.J. Regional Health of Glasgow. "This grant helps our program continue to educate and train nursing professionals for our area while partnering with one of our region's most important healthcare providers," said Button. "We appreciate the strong partnerships we enjoy with our local healthcare providers, and this grant is but one example of that strong partnership."
