

Kiddos love to milk old Daisy May.

Not just the food, but the fuel we burn in our vehicles and the natural fibers threaded in fashion.

“We enjoy sharing about all the different roles agriculture plays in our lives, whether burning fuel or the food we eat. The main goal of BOF is to educate people about agriculture,” CC Farm Bureau member Keith Aakre commented.

The Aakres have lined up several ag-related vendors, who will share how various aspects of agriculture tie into our everyday lives. Many likely know that ethanol is a corn-derived oil used in gasoline, but did you know corn starch is also used in the production of tires?

“Manufacturers use animal leather and hides to make footballs, baseballs, and baseball gloves, and they use the collagen from animal joints and other hard tissues to make adhesives and many additives, like gelatin used in marshmallows,” Keith and Lori explained.

The CC Farm Bureau displays a board that shows just how much agriculture shows up in our everyday lives, from the leather in our shoes to the medications we take, including animal heart valves, primarily sourced from pigs and cows, used in bioprosthetic heart valve replacements for humans due to their compatibility and effectiveness.
