

Tim Eggebraaten will provide the live entertainment.

Pondering what she can get into next place. The goal is to pull a weighted sled over a set distance.

“At this point, there are likely parents who’ve participated in the pedal pull, who are now entering their kids into the event, and we always have a few back to defend their title or beat their sibling,” Keith commented.

Thanks to the many BOF sponsors, there will be a wide variety of free activities for the kiddos, including barrel trains and farm bingo. Butler Machinery will sponsor a bouncy house, and Red River Ag and Titan Machinery, which sponsor the kids’ corn box. The barn will be full of just about every animal one would expect to find on the farm. There will also be large farm equipment on display, which the kiddos love as well.

“I am hoping for beautiful weather and a chance to meet more of our community members,” Cathy commented.

BOF is not only a busy morning on the farm, jammed packed full of family fun and a stack of pancakes, but it is also the rooster’s crow to Rodeo Fest. It opens the gates and draws back the barn doors so people can see just how essential agriculture is in our everyday life while bringing the community together.
