Alyssa Ann Anderson

By Cole Anderson

Alyssa Ann Anderson, daughter of Wade and Christina Anderson, is someone who has truly made her mark during her high school years. If you know Alyssa, you've probably heard her say, "It made sense in my head, but okay," usually followed by her laugh. That pretty much sums up her personality of never being afraid to be herself.

Alyssa looks up to her grandma, Lori, and their relationship is something truly special to her. Alyssa looks to her grandma for advice and guidance, knowing she will always listen and be there no matter what. That influence has clearly shaped Alyssa into the person she is today.

During High school, Alyssa stayed busy both in and out of the classroom. She played softball, where she built strong friendships and learned the value of teamwork and commitment. Whether it was practice or game day, she always showed up ready to put in the effort.

Outside of school, Alyssa has worked at the nursing home since April 2024 and has been working at Prairie Pines Assisted Living in Fosston since January 2025. Through her work, she's gained real-life experience and skills that will help her in the future. Alyssa has gained many valuable friendships at work. She says working is one of her favorite things to do because of how it is preparing her for her future career in nursing, and she loves helping her residents and talking with them.

Academically, Alyssa has done an amazing job. She's earned both the President's list and the Dean's list at Northland Community and Technical College, which shows she is dedicated to her schoolwork. One of the biggest parts of her high school journey is doing PSEO. It wasn't something that she originally planned on, but she took the opportunity and ran with it. Because of her hard work, she will be entering the practical nursing program in the fall and will start her path towards her RN. It just goes to show that sometimes the things that you don't plan end up working out the best.

Of course, high school wouldn't be complete without a few embarrassing and funny moments, and Alyssa has some good ones. One that stands out is when she confidently pronounced "hallucinations" as "hall-OU-kin-ate-shons" while working on a class project. It's something that her friends will probably never let her forget. Another memorable moment was when she convinced people that we were cousins because we had the same last name.

Alyssa also has a strong mindset when it comes to her future. One of her biggest pet peeves is when people don't have goals or don't care about things that matter. She believes in working hard and staying focused on what's important. Her advice to underclassmen is: "Live your life your way; others will always have something to say." This is something she lives by, and it shows in the way she's stayed true to herself.

Her goal is to become a registered nurse and help people through some of the hardest times of their lives. With her caring personality and strong work ethic, she is well on her way to achieving that goal of becoming a registered nurse.
