

Allison Jayne Carlin

Allison's journey in life after high school will begin at Concordia, Moorhead, where she will major in education, she hasn't decided on the age group she wants to teach. Allison plans on gaining as much money as she can; she hopes to accumulate enough to travel, except it isn't your average idea of travel. Allison plans to move to another country and live a life full of mystery and suddenly come home one day ready to act as if nothing ever happened. This is just one part of her amazing humor.

I know we all will be thinking about Allison every time we hear squeaks in the hall, or whenever we see someone else wearing mismatched crocs. Good luck at Concordia, Allison, and I wish you even more luck with your mysterious adventure!

enjoys her time off. During this time, she feeds her cows cookies and enjoys spending time with them. Grace plans on getting a meat-cutting certificate from a school in Willmar. She has been working at McIntosh Senior Living for nine months as a dietary aide.

When Grace is at school, she stays quiet and reserved. Her favorite teacher is Donovan, and her favorite part of the school day is lunch. If there's a cheeseburger around, not for much longer when Grace is present. Grace plans to attend a school in Willmar for a meat-cutting certificate so she can professionally butcher. Her long-term goal is to make as much money as she can so she can give her cows a luxurious lifestyle.

Grace has some advice for underclassmen: "Make sure you show up to school. Do not be on the line of 60 missed absences." She regrets not being at school more often, making friends, and learning.

Looking back at her high school career, there was one memory that really stuck out to her—not for how life-changing it was or how much of a good time it was with friends, but for how silly it was.

Amaya Blue Continued

Olson; and her three sisters, Kylie (oldest), Amaris (second oldest), and Naomi (youngest). She and her family moved to Lengby in 2019, and Amaya has been attending Fosston Schools since 6th grade.

Amaya graduates this year and plans to move to Fargo, ND, where she hopes to pursue a degree in social work or attend cosmetology school.

One word to describe Amaya would definitely be "outgoing." She likes to spend time with friends and go out, of course when she isn't busy working at her job at Hugo's, baking sweet treats, or catching up on some very important sleep.

The one thing that gets under Amaya's skin is loud chewers because, "Why don't you close your mouth?" So make sure you keep that mouth closed around this girl!

Looking toward the future, Amaya hopes to have a successful career and a loving family. If you were to ask her what she'll miss most about high school, she'd say "nothing," but if you asked about her favorite class and teacher, she'd say art class with Mr. McColl.

The one person Amaya looks up to is her second-oldest sister, Amaris. Why, you may ask? Well, because she's her sister—duh!

And finally, the last hoorah and piece of advice Amaya has for underclassmen is, "Have good hygiene."

Typically, when you hear squeaks in the school's hallway, you assume the floor is wet. You ignore it, but then the squeaking gets louder...and louder ... and then BOOM! A wild Allison Jayne Carlin has appeared rocking her crocs with no socks! Allison was born on October 4th 2007. Her family consists of her mother; Carrie Carlin and her Father; Dan Carlin and her brother, Tony.

Allison has spent her high school career in three main activities: swimming, speech, and one act. Allison swims and has won numerous events on her own, while also using her ability to swim to help teach lessons to the youth. In speech, she started out with drama. Later, she switched to humor and duo with Maria Green. She went to state twice in duo and is hoping to compete at state later this year in humor. Allison's acting doesn't just stop at Speech; she also participates in One Acts. This year, she had a lead role in the One Acts play that won 2nd place at sections.

When asked about her favorite classes, she wasn't very sure. It could've been history or geography, but definitely not chemistry. When asked why, she stated: "I still don't think Chemistry is real. Mr. B has to be making that up."
