

Hilde Clara Deusterman

By Ellie Olson

Hilde Clara Deusterman, the daughter of Abe and Angie Deusterman, is preparing to trade her high school halls for the nursing program at NDSU this fall. She will have the best roommate ever, Ellie Olson, who cares for her deeply. As she looks into a career in healthcare, Hilde carries with her a strong academic foundation, boasting a 4.00 GPA as well as serving as the secretary for both the National Honor Society and the senior class.

Her passion for medicine isn't just academic; she has been working as a Certified Nursing Assistant (CNA) at McIntosh Senior Living since June 2024. This interest also connects with her favorite class, biology, where she discovered a love for learning about human anatomy and how the body works. She credits much of her academic success to teachers like Mr. Bertson, whom she admires because "it's clear he loves what he does."

When she isn't studying or working, which is pretty rare, Hilde is very active. She has been involved in NHS, volleyball, and also served as a boys' basketball manager during her senior year. She is also very involved with youth group, and has spent her summers at Bethany and Bluewater Bible camps. When asked about her most prized possession, Hilde's perspective remains eternal, noting that her true "treasures are found in Heaven".

She loves the outdoors and playing spikeball and ultimate frisbee with friends. Hilde also enjoys beaded embroidery or watching movies with her dad, especially Marvel ones, stating that it's "their thing". As she is someone who loves action and a fast pace, make sure you don't walk too slowly in front of her on her way to class!

She is grateful for her siblings: Oliver, Greta, and Violet, as well as their family dog, Tracker. However, her greatest role model is her mother, Angie. Hilde shared that she is who taught her "most everything I know" and is the primary reason her faith is so strong.

She said the thing she'll miss most about high school are her friends, who shaped so many of her best memories. Her advice to underclassmen is to "try your best on everything you do," a standard she clearly lives by; Hilde's attention to detail is inspiring.

Looking ahead, Hilde's goals are clear: she hopes to become a nurse, possibly a CRNA in the future after she gets her BSN RN, and to be a stay at home mom for a part of her life. Above all, she aims to remain "on fire for Jesus" as she enters this next chapter.

Rashariah Hammer

Rashariah Hammer is wrapping up her senior year at Fosston High School in a way that is completely her own—full of personality, presence, and a little bit of mischief. Known for being large and in charge, Rashariah brings a strong spirit into every room she enters. She enjoys the simple things that make her day meaningful: swinging, relaxing on her favorite pillow, listening to music, taking walks, and especially playing her plastic piano, which she approaches with enthusiasm and style.

When she's feeling good, her joy is unmistakable. She often lets out a laugh that lets you know something playful might be coming next—sometimes followed by a quick reach for your hair if you're within range.

Throughout her time at Fosston High School, Rashariah has been supported by a team of staff who truly adore her. She is well-known in the hallways, and while she keeps people on their toes, she is someone her classmates and staff look out for and care about. Rashariah will leave behind a legacy of growth, resilience, and a personality that won't soon be forgotten.
