

We remember and honor those lost in the service of our nation on this Memorial Day.

“The men and women who gave their lives in service to our country were dedicated to the worthy cause of freedom, and not one of them died in vain. From colonial America to the Persian Gulf, from places such as the Argonne to Normandy, Inchon, and Da Nang they fought and sacrificed so others might live in peace, free from the fear of tyranny and aggression. On this Memorial Day, our hearts should swell with thankfulness and pride as we reflect on our Nation’s enduring heritage of liberty under law and on the continuing expansion of democratic ideals around the globe.” President George Bush 1992

“This freedom of which men speak, for which they fight, seems to some people a perilous thing. It has to be earned at a bitter cost and then—it has to be lived with. For freedom makes a huge requirement of every human being. With freedom comes responsibility.” —Eleanor Roosevelt

“Our debt to the heroic men and valiant women in the service of our country can never be repaid. They have earned our undying gratitude. America will never forget their sacrifices.” —Harry S. Truman

“And I’m proud to be an American, where at least I know I’m free. And I won’t forget the men who died, who gave that right to me.” —Lee Greenwood

“How important it is for us to recognize and celebrate our heroes and she-roes.” —Maya Angelou

“As we express our gratitude, we must never forget that the highest appreciation is not to utter words but to live by them.” —John F. Kennedy

“Patriotism is supporting your country all the time, and your government when it deserves it.” —Mark Twain

“Our flag does not fly because the wind moves it. It flies with the last breath of each soldier who died protecting it.” —Unknown
